

DEVON (CONT'D) (massaging his face and pointing to Mary)

...you need to become a fighter in here.

Devon taps his forehead. He and the three Henchmen walk out of the apartment leaving June and Mary on the floor.

June painfully stands up. She slowly limps over to the bathroom and slams the door behind her.

Mary sits alone in the living room. After a few moments she torturously gets up and limps to the bathroom.

BATHROOM - CONTINUOUS

Mary opens the door.

MARY

June....

The bathroom is empty. The window that leads to the emergency staircase is open.

INT. CHARLIE'S APARTMENT - CHARLIE'S BEDROOM - MIDNIGHT

Charlie is putting a damp cloth on June's cuts and bruises. June wears one of Charlie's shorts and tank-tops.

CHARLIE

I don't think it's right, not telling me what happened. I should know who did this.

JUNE

So you can do what? Read to him?
You're not a fighter. But that's why I love you.

CHARLIE

You sound like my dad. But being a man means being able to fight.

JUNE

It'll be safer if you don't know anything.

CHARLIE

Safer for who?

JUNE

You, genius. I don't know how to get out of this any other way. Can you just keep cleaning my cuts and bruises when I get them?

CHARLIE

I'll keep cleaning your cuts and bruises.

A door from downstairs slams shut. Charlie and June look at Charlie's bedroom door.

CHARLIE'S FATHER (O.S.)

Charlie?

CHARLIE

(to his father)
I'm upstairs.

June looks around the room, then scurries under Charlie's bed.

Charlie takes the bucket of water and hides it behind some books. He throws the damp cloth with June's blood on it out the window.

June tries to get comfortable under Charlie's bed. She can see the bottom of the door as it opens. Large, shiny black dress-shoes walk into the room.

CHARLIE'S FATHER (O.S.)

What are you doing?

CHARLIE (O.S.)

Just looking around for one of my books on Roman History.

CHARLIE'S FATHER (O.S.)

I brought some food home from work. Rick cooked up extra meatballs.

CHARLIE (O.S.)

Oh good. I'm starving.

Charlie's Father walks around Charlie. June sees there's a spot of blood on the floor next to Charlie's Father's feet.

CHARLIE'S FATHER (O.S.)

Why is there blood on my floor?

June puts her hand on her mouth to cover her breathing.